

Abstract

Method and System for Annotating a Window Shared by Remote Hosts

5 An annotation object is formed and stored independently of an application that constructed an application window. A window is shaped to display the stored annotation object. The annotation object is selected and displayed in the application window. An annotation object window is shaped by a window shaping unit at the location designated in the 10 application window.